"We abuse land because we regard it as a commodity belonging to us. When we see land as a community to which we belong, we may begin to use it with love and respect."

– Aldo Leopold, American ecologist, 1887-1948

WELCOME/INVOCATION (CM OR OTHER LEADER):

THINGS WE HOLD DEAR

As good Scouters, one of the things we should hold most dear is our environment. We need to keep it clean and do what we can to let other people know that we care about the outdoors and they should also. As we focus on “Litter to Glitter” and recycling tonight, we should think about how we can keep our world clean for the generations yet to come.

ADVANCEMENT:

SOLUTION TO POLLUTION ADVANCEMENT CEREMONY

JIM: Our Cub Scouts have been learning about their environment and how to be part of the solution to pollution rather than contributors to the problem. They are learning to re-use, reduce, and recycle products in their home. They will participate in service projects to help fix existing problems in their neighborhoods and parks. Tonight we honor some of those service-minded Scouts who have completed some more requirements while working towards their rank advancements.

TONY: The Bobcat Trail is the beginning of the Cub Scout adventure. The boys attaining this rank have just begun to learn the meaning of service to others as they learned the Cub Scout Promise and Law of the Pack. (Call boys and parents forward if present).

JEN: Tiger Cubs learn the importance of cleaning up our world and how to conserve what we have. (Call boys forward.)

DAN: In progressing to attain the rank of Wolf, boys learn about our “Living World” and how to protect it. They make observations about how their neighborhoods get dirty, and then go into action to help be part of the solution to the problem. (Call boys forward.)

BRIAN: The Big Bear Trail is full of choices, and some of those choices deal with “Taking Care of Your Planet” and “Sharing Your World with Wildlife.” Our Bear Cubs learn something of the interdependence of life on Planet Earth, that all living things need each other, while working towards their Bear rank. (Call boys forward.)

TODD: Learning the Outdoor Code is one of the requirements for attaining the Webelos rank. In preparing for Boy Scouts, these boys will be spending more and more time outdoors, and their conduct toward the environment could impact generations to come. (Call boys forward.)

JIM: The outdoor program is an important part of the Scouting movement. Be a leader in your school, your home, and your neighborhood to preserve this precious environment.

CLOSING WORDS:

(4 speakers stationed around the room at cardinal points)

SAVE IT FOR US

TONY: The next time you're outside, pause a moment to look at the old trees.

DAN: They have sheltered countless generations of wildlife and have withstood years of extreme weather and the abuses of man.

HAZEL: They've seen children playing at their roots and climbing in their branches.

JIM: They've heard the conversations of war and peace of the men gathered in their generous shade.

TONY: Listen to the brook as it whispers of its secret travels nurturing the earth along the way. Look into it and see the insects, amphibians, and fish that call it home. Wade into its shallows and feel its refreshing coolness.

DAN: Nature persistently calls us to leave the sidewalks and traffic lights and noise and hustle and bustle of the city.

HAZEL: The earth is calling us back to enjoy its simplicity and beauty.

JIM: Good night Scouts -- Go in peace and remember to "Do Your Best" to "Save It for Us" so that you, and your children, and your children's children can enjoy earth's beautiful and wondrous bounty.
